TEACHER’S GUIDE

NECESSARY MATERIALS

- Conflict scenario cards (pre-written scenarios of common conflicts)
- Notecards or paper for notes
- Timer or stopwatch
- Whiteboard and markers

DETAILED DESCRIPTION

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Introduction to Conflict Management:

- Begin by discussing what conflict is and why it's important to manage it effectively.
- Explain the different types of conflicts (e.g., interpersonal, group, internal) and common causes (e.g., misunderstandings, differing values).

2. Preparation Phase:

- Divide students into small groups of 3-4 members.
- Give each group a conflict scenario card. Examples of scenarios:
 - Two friends arguing over a game rule.
 - A group project where one member isn't contributing.
 - Siblings fighting over shared space at home.
- Allow groups 10-15 minutes to discuss their scenario, identify the type of conflict, and brainstorm potential resolution strategies.

3. Role-Playing Activity:

- Each group takes turns role-playing their scenario in front of the class.
- After each role-play, the class discusses the conflict, and what they observed, and suggests additional resolution strategies.
- Use a timer to ensure each group has enough time but keeps to the schedule.

DEBRIEFING QUESTIONS

Facilitate a group discussion with the following questions:

1. What types of conflicts did you observe in the scenarios?
2. How did it feel to role-play and watch others handle conflicts?
3. What strategies were effective in resolving the conflicts?
4. How can you apply these conflict management skills in real-life situations?

OTHER USEFUL INFORMATION

- Encourage students to be respectful and supportive during the role-playing and discussions.
- Remind students that conflict is a normal part of life and learning to manage it effectively is a valuable skill.
- Consider having a follow-up activity where students reflect on a real conflict they experienced and how they could use the strategies learned to handle it better.
- This activity not only helps students understand and manage conflicts but also fosters empathy and cooperation in a safe and structured environment.
